Final Exam Week: The Moment of Truth

Seniors Notice

Graduating seniors must pick up their caps and gowns in the bookstore on June 1 and 2.

The Senior Brunch will be in the Student Center at 12:30 p. m.

Baccalaureate services will be the same day at 5 p. m. in the Stadium.

Commencement exercises will be the following day, Monday, June 5, at 5 p. m. in the stadium. In the event of rain, the ceremonies will be held in the Field House.

Val Petersen, former governor of Nebraska and former ambassador to Denmark under President Eisenhower, will deliver the commencement address.

3 Honoraries Cite Officers

Officers of Omaha University's three honorary organizations for 1961-62 were announced Sunday at the Honors Banquet at the Blackstone Hotel.

New president of the Corinthians' Society, scholastic honorary for upper class students, is Sarah Brader. Other officers are Linda Strnad, vice-president; Sally Ann Poppino, secretary and Pat Van Voorhis, treasurer.

Joan Mencke will serve as president of Waokiya, senior leadership honorary for women, for the coming year. Other officers include Jean Hornish, vice-president; Jean Severa, secretary; Dean Elizaeth Hill, treasurer; and Linda Strnad, historian.

New president of Omicron Delta Kappa, senior leadership honorary for men, is Allen Taylor. Other officers are Larry Schmidt, vice-president; Dean Donald Pflasterer, secretary, and Kendall Brink, treasurer.

Midyear members of Corinthians Society were formally introduced. They are Judith Flint, Audrey Miller, Jean Pakiser, Joyce Peterson and Sally Ann Poppino. Junior and senior students with a cumulative average of 3.5 or better are eligible for the co-educational honorary.

Guest speaker at the banquet was Dean George Waggoner from the University of Kansas who spoke on "Poetry, Business, and Graduate School."

Summer Sessions Provide Continuity in Achieving Goal

By DONALD Z. WOODS,
Dean, College of Adult Educ.

"Last summer, why did six hundred University of Omaha students, regularly enrolled during the academic year, take classes during the months of June, July and August?"

Why did they abandon the traditional "summer vacation concept?"

For college students, a "planned future" includes a planned educational schedule. If a degree—or the mastery of a body of knowledge—is essential to one's career, it is good sense to work steadily toward attaining that goal.

Many students, because they were trained and indoctrinated on grade and high school schedules, feel that school "shuts down" in the summer. However, the adult student, undergraduate or graduate, has now come to recognize that it is too expensive to "lay off" during the summer, that the best use he can make of his time is to keep right on with his educational program.

No business man, no artist, no housewife, no lawyer, no nurse—nobody in the workaday world stops working at his career for the summer months. To get ahead, and to achieve their goals, they go right on applying themselves to the work that needs to be done.

The three summer sessions—two 5-week terms and an 8-week evening session—provide great selection of courses for the student who is determined to keep his educational career moving ahead on schedule.

Registration for this year's summer sessions will be on Friday, June 9, from 1 to 4 p. m. and 5 to 8 p. m. and on Saturday, June 10, from 9 a. m. until noon.

Classes for the first session begin June 12, the second, July 17. Night courses begin June 13 and run through August 2.

Cost of Program Changes Goes Up

The Registrar's Office said this week that the one dollar fee for program changes has been raised to five dollars, effective for the next fall semester.

To change your program this fall, go to the Registrar's Office and pick up a change of program slip. Fill it out then have it signed by your counselor. Return it to the Registrar's Office and drop off your unwanted class cards. You will be given a statement which must be paid at the Cashier Counter. You can then pick up your new class cards when you present your receipt.

For those students who did not pre-register, a letter will be sent during the summer stating the time and date they should appear in the Registrar's Office.

Bills for the fall semester will be mailed Sept. 1 to the students who pre-registered. Students who wish to have their class cards sent to them should send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with their tuition payment.

Registrar Alice Smith said that instructors should have their final grades in by June sixth. This means that the grades should be received by June 15. Miss Smith also stated that there is no possible way to get your grades ahead of time.

Senior List Sets New Record

A record number of Omaha University seniors will receive diplomas June 5. Registrar Alice Smith said about 500 seniors will participate in this year's commencement exercises, compared with 418 in 1960.

Two hundred and twenty graduates are in the College of Adult Education, 77 will receive Bachelor of Arts degrees, and 174, Bachelor of Science.

Twenty-three are to receive Masters' degrees.

Supervisor of Military Education Roy Nolte said around 220 military and career servicemen will get degrees. Most of the graduating servicemen are bootstrappers, although several are on active duty at military bases in the Omaha area.

Friday, May 19, graduates attending Senior Day activities heard Dr. Aldrich Paul, head of the University's speech department and senior sponsor, charge them to "take a dare."

Speaking to the graduates, Dr. Paul said 95 per cent of them will find a comfortable plateau in society and stay there. He told them the coward will never start, the weak will fade away, and the strong will take the dare.

"The five per cent that dares aim for an objective must then dare to shoot for it," he said. He continued saying nothing was ever accomplished until someone dared to do it.

Dr. Bail made a brief statement to the class, reiterating Dr. Paul's charge and told the graduates "The world is not waiting for you with open arms, but for you to take your place in society."

He said they will have to make their own way by taking the "dare."

Five seniors received honors during Senior Day ceremonies. Judy Lane received the Alpha Lambda Delta Book Award, Mary Schoep a one-year membership in the American Association of University Women, and Robert Plagman, the Delta Sigma Pi Scholarship Key for having the highest grade average of senior men in the College of Business Administration. August graduate Fredric Gottschalk was the recipient of the Wall Street Journal Award and January graduate Harry Mikkleson received the Paul T. Crossman Memorial to the outstanding accounting graduate.

The finale for Senior Day was the annual tree planting ceremony. The 1961 class planted the first tree on the west side of the campus, just northeast of the Student Center Building.

Social Work Praised

Certificates of service recognition were presented to 11 OU students by the Omaha City Mission Society at a special dinner last Friday night.

Tapping Bids To Students

A faculty member and five senior men were tapped into Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership honorary, at the all-school sing May 19. Waokiya tapped 18 women.

Dr. Ralph M. Wardle, chairman of the department of English, and students Kendall Brink, Bruce Graves, Rodney Hiddleston, Larry Schmidt and Allen Taylor joined ODK.

Dr. Wardle was the only faculty member tapped this year. He is the founder of the Corinthians' Society and the originator of The Club (English honorary) and Grain of Sand literary publication.

Waokiya initiates include Joan Mencke, Jean Hornish, Jean Severa, Linda Strnad, Gwen Sandvall, Sheilah Dunklau, Sarah Brader, Karen Kleider, Karen Kaufmann and Linda Jelen.

Others are Judy McKinney, Marie Walter, Nancy Reasoner, Carol Lind, Ann Pence, Pat Van Voorhis, Joyce Peterson and Ginny Anderosn.

Students are elected to the honoraries on the basis of majors and minors in such activities as scholarship, student government, student publications, athletics and fine arts. Faculty members are elected on the basis of contributions to their field and service to their students.

Both tap in the spring at the All-School Sing and again at the Deans Tea in winter for midyear initiates.

OU's yearbook, the Tomahawk, was distributed this week. Today will be the last day the books will be available in the Student Center cloakroom (first floor) but students may obtain them later in the Student Publications office. Full-time students for both semesters receive the book by showing their activity card. One-semester students must show their card and pay three dollars.

Beyond —30—

By Ken Zimmerman

It's been quite a year.

From sandbags and traffic lights to study committees and football, there's been a lot to talk about.

We at the Gateway hope we've had a part in stirring the conversation.

We've been accused of creating controversy but, after all, is that really bad? If it's true, by its very nature we've made people think.

One man's opinion—and no one else's—has appeared in this column. It's been biased and, perhaps, dogmatic but that's why there's a name attached.

If opinion appears regarding, for instance, Panhellenic rush rules, and readers take time to comment, then at least someone has thought about them. Whether or not they agree with me is not important.

It's been a lot of fun no matter what the reactions were. So much, in fact, that if I can coerce Gail Grove next fall, I'll give it another whirl.

Gail takes over the editorship in September and you can be sure there's going to be some fine papers published.

It's not just that she's a terrific journalist and worker; she's got some terrific people to work with.

Bill Vogt, named managing editor this week, is a good example. Sometimes I think he's sick—he works too hard.

No one person could ever put out the Gateway. It's people like Bill Vogt and John Ritner who exemplify the necessary teamwork.

Gail has been lucky enough to have John take another turn in the sports editor's chair.

Right down the line—Sharon Johnson, Mary Beth Meyers, Bill Grow, Carole Siebert and Arlo Grafton—the entire staff has already proven itself capable of putting out a good paper.

I'm sure that they, too, will make students think and talk and maybe cuss and complain.

And if he hasn't been reincarnated as a coffee cup, Chuck Barry will be around to help me prompt the staff, itself, to cuss and complain.

Chuck's one of the outspoken proponents of the three-day coffee break. Linus has his blanket—Chuck has his cup of coffee.

At any rate, we in Student Publications have had a good time this year and we're looking forward to the same next fall.

We hope our readers share a bit of our enthusiasm.

Luncheon Monday

President Ball's spring sports luncheon will be held Monday in Dining Rooms A and B of the Student Center.

The luncheon starting at 12 noon will fete all OU spring sports clubs and their coaches.

Bootstrappers Pin Center's Hostess

Mrs. Babbette O. Crowder, Student Center Hostess, has been "pinned." She has been awarded an honorary membership in the Pen and Sword, campus bootstrapper organization.

Ray Call, Pen and Sword President, said Mrs. Crowder has become a favorite personality to the bootstrappers because of her interest in the Student Center Pen and Sword bulletin board, and because of her pleasant disposition, which has helped students feel at home in the Center.

Mrs. Crowder's accent stamps her as a Southerner. Before she and her husband, who is in the Corps of Engineers, came to Omaha, they lived in Birmingham, Alabama, where she taught school.

About her job she explains: "The administration feels that one person can provide adequate supervision, without the students feeling they are being policed."

"My job is made easy by the students here," she said. "They enjoy having a good time, but they are also considerate."

Mrs. Crowder . . . "Pinned."

Problems do come up, such as the day a girl, keeping her coat tight about her, came asking for a needle. Her zipper had torn out. "I keep a needle and thread in my office, so I was able to repair the damage, and she didn't miss any classes."

Mrs. Crowder's problems, though small, are never-ending: students who like to relax by putting their feet on the chairs and tables, and students who want to do home work in the Cafeteria and Ouampi Room.

"Right now the thing that the students seem to enjoy most is playing bridge," she said. "From seven in the morning on, the card room is never empty."

She would like to see more planned activities in the Center. "The Friday afternoon dances are enjoyable," she said, "I like to see the students having a good time."

Opinions Vary on Attending Class

By Paul "X" Derry
(Second of Two Parts.)

Required attendance in the classroom is something that students in the United States have grown up with. It was mandatory in grade school and high school and those who didn't go along with it soon learned about the truant officer.

But in college there is no truant officer to catch skipping students. Many believe that this is the way it should be.

Either through knowledge of the European concept of attendance, a method also used at the University of Chicago, or by past experience in public schools, students tend to rebel against mandatory classroom attendance.

According to an informal poll of 1,383 college students on other campuses, published in the March 24 issue of the GATEWAY, 67.7 per cent answered yes when asked: "Should class attendance be optional so long as students pass the exams given in class?" The remainder, 31.3 per cent, said no.

These results might well fit the thinking of students at Omaha University, but it wouldn't matter. The University's view on attendance is plain: "Students are expected to attend class regularly . . . Attendance shall be a matter of careful and regular record in each class. Each instructor shall make regular reports to the Dean of Students of the absences incurred by each student . . . that a student's neglect of work endangers his success in a course."

How well do OU professors follow these rules? If followed, does attendance or lack of it really effect a student's grade?

Dr. Aldrich K. Paul, head of the Speech Department, includes attendance in his point grading system.

"Everyone begins with 100 points on attendance and five points are taken away each time the student is absent," said Dr. Paul. In this manner a student knows how much he is hurting himself by not attending class, he said.

Roderic B. Crane, head of the Economics Department, also believes in the importance of the student attending class.

"I have the old fashioned notion that students learn something by coming to class," he said. "It isn't all in the textbook. Students can learn from the instructor. If there were nothing to classroom work then the whole education system could be carried out on a correspondence basis."

As to how many absences a student is allowed before his grade drops, Mr. Crane wouldn't say. "If I let that out each student would take his limit."

John G. McMillan, head of the Physics Department, also lowers a student's grade for failure to attend class. All cuts over and above the number of hours of the course will detract from the final grade.

"We expect the student to contribute in class and therefore to learn from class," Mr. McMillan said.

William T. Utley, head of the Political Science Department, abides by the University rule on attendance but doesn't grade a student down if he misses class. However, if the student is a borderline case and has had a poor attendance record, his grade will probably end up on the bottom side of the border rather than the top.

Another believer in student responsibility, rather than required attendance, is Paul L. Beck, assistant professor of History.

"Excessive attention to attendance only encourages immaturity," Mr. Beck said. "I am more concerned that the student is responsible enough to attend class."

His classes are always well attended. This, he believes, is because "the student will attend class if he thinks you don't care if he is there or not."

Mr. Beck doesn't entirely ignore attendance however. If a student in his lower division course is absent and the absences are hurting the student he will call him in and discuss it with him.

One OU professor of history has another view on attendance. Dr. Roy Robbins requires his students to attend class.

Our system isn't like the European or University of Chicago methods so attendance is essential he said.

"Here we don't sift out the top students as some European Universities do, but accept all students."

It is for this reason that Dr. Robbins feels attendance should be required. "We have here the problem of educating, as much as possible, all of our students."

With this in mind Dr. Robbins counts off a student's final grade if that student has had excessive absences.

Dr. Robbins doesn't believe examinations alone can measure a student's grade. "Interest in the course, lectures and readings are included in my grading system," he said.

With so many different methods and beliefs, what can the student do to obtain his desired goal?

The answer, or at least some aid in determining the answer, may be found in a book which lies neglected on a shelf in OU's library. "The Psychology of Getting Grades," written by an anonymous psychology instructor, gives many helpful hints to the anxious student.

Some of his suggestions on course choosing: Take large credit courses; you'll have fewer professors to learn how to please and fewer to give you assignments. Avoid laboratory courses, they take too much time; avoid courses which require a lot of written work. If you don't like a course, make a change quickly.

On choosing professors, the psychologist says: Choose a professor who has been at his job for a long time. He is usually tolerant, has a paternal attitude toward student's shortcomings. Choose a professor who has a reputation for being dogmatic. It is easier to know what to expect on an examination. Choose a professor who gave you a good grade in a previous course.

On handling professors: Learn first how to please him. Make a good impression early, the rest is easy. To be sure of a good grade try "elbow-shinning" or "apple-polishing" but be conservative about it.

In doing this play up to his pet interests. To learn these check his writings on file in the school library. Also avoid his pet peeves. Talk with the professor in his own language: "Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery." LAUGH at his jokes, loud and long.

Golf

The Bootstrappers maintained their lead in the golf title chase. They have a record of 3 wins and no losses. TKE is second with a 4-1 record, and Sig Ep, third with 3-1.

Wrestling Squad Surprises Gorman

The Omaha University Wrestling Squad threw a surprise party for Coach Russ Gorman Saturday night.

Gorman will leave soon for Indiana University to complete work on his Doctorate.

Gorman, Assistant Coach Don Benning and senior Bob Tallman were awarded plaques.

Send your old clothes to Stan Wells.

Volunteer Bureau Seeks Student Help

"You too can be a Paul Revere" is their motto, volunteered services is their function.

The Volunteer Bureau, a department of the United Community Services, is trying to form an active group at Omaha University.

At a luncheon May 22, Mrs. Sue Buffett explained to faculty members and students the work of the Volunteer Bureau.

The Bureau would like to have individual and group participation on the university level.

Clinical assistant, swimming instructor, play supervisor and office worker are a few of the types of volunteer services needed.

A slide series on volunteer work is available for organizations interested.

Jim Gammon Elected

Jim Gammon was elected president of the Society for the Advancement of Management on May 16.

New Cheerleaders Are Announced

Seven new cheerleaders and two alternates were chosen after try-outs May 18.

Members of the regular squad are Gail Browning, Georgia Clark, Mary Ellen Gundry, Tiny McMichael, Carol Morgan, Sue Weidenhammer and Bunny Wybenga. New alternates are Jackie Nybbelin and Sandy Modes.

The 22 coeds who tried out were judged by Mrs. Betty Davis, Jack Malik and Dean Curtis Siemers.

The new cheerleaders were invited to a picnic honoring this year's squad June 2 in Elmwood Park. Awards will be presented by the Inter-pep Council.

Alum Awards Set for June 1

Thresa Clark will be honored at the annual Alumni Achievement Banquet June 1 at 6:30 Thursday evening in the Student Union Ballroom.

Miss Clark, principal of Benson West grade school, will receive the citation as the outstanding Alumnus in the field of education.

Three scholarships will also be awarded along with several other achievement awards.

The scholarships are: Glenn L. Martin, two hundred dollars; Daniel L. Jenkins and The Alumni Liberal Arts, both to pay a year's tuition.

A scholarship usually given by the Pen and Sword Society at the banquet will not be awarded this year.

Four fifty dollar grants—the Dr. William H. Thompson awards—will be given, along with the Athlete of the Year Award and three outstanding athlete citations.

Speakers at the dinner will be Dr. Milo Bail, J. Gordon Roberts, and Frank C. Heinisch.

Scholarship to Kappa Delta Pi Marie Walter

Marie Walter was presented the Kappa Delta Pi scholarship at the honorary's picnic May 18.

Miss Walter, a member of Alpha Lambda Delta and Waakiya honoraries, is president of Student Education Association.

Following the picnic, officers of the group were elected. They are Karen Kaufman, president; Linda Strnad, vice-president; Kathy Dolan, secretary; Miss Carolyn Kundel, treasurer; and Weanne Heldt, historian.

Applications for 1963 Tomahawk editor aren't due yet.

Angels Named At All-School Sing

Arnold Air Society and Angels Flight named 10 new Angels at the All-School Sing last Friday.

Indians Champs in CIC, KMN Loop

Omaha University's baseball club was declared champions of the Central Intercollegiate Conference and Kansas-Missouri-Nebraska League for the third straight year when the twin-bill with Washburn was rained out for the second time.

Washburn, now taking final exams, was unable to set a third date for the games.

This left OU with a 4-0 record in the CIC and a 5-1 mark in the K-M-N loop.

Meanwhile the Indians advanced to the NAIA area playoffs with a 7-6 win over Wayne State in the final contest of a three game series.

The Tribe, after losing the opener to the Bulldogs 9-5, roared back to take the second game 13-1 behind the pitching efforts of Barry Miller and Mike Coughlin.

Miller allowed the Staters only one hit in the six innings he worked while striking out eight Wayne batters.

Dave Aden held the Nebraska College Conference champs to two runs through eight innings in the first game but was jumped on in the ninth before Miller came to his rescue.

The Indians threatened in the bottom of the ninth scoring three times before the uprising was squelched.

In the finale, Jim Hardick's fielder's choice with one out scored the winning Indian run in the bottom of the tenth after Ray Fehrman had been hit by a pitched ball and Bob McCormack and Don Gruidel had been intentionally passed to fill the bases.

OU left for Emporia Wednesday night for a 10 o'clock game yesterday against North Dakota representative Mayville Teachers in the NAIA area double elimination tournament.

Mayville defeated Black Hills, South Dakota 4-3 to win the trip to Emporia.

OU holds two wins over the Kansas entry, Emporia State.

The winner of the three day affair will receive a berth in the NAIA championships held in Sioux City June 6-10.

Two losses in the tourney would end the Indian's season.
